FOR PARENTS

Dear Parents

Everything important about the S – a 3-minute read.

When the S isn't there yet

Many children say the S with the tongue between the teeth ("thun" instead of "sun") or replace it with another sound ("tun"). Every child develops at their own pace.

If you have questions about your child's pronunciation, talk to a speech-language pathologist (SLP). This workbook supports practice at home.

When to see a speech therapist?

✓ Your child often replaces or leaves out certain sounds and you are unsure whether that is typical.

✓ Your child is often hard to understand.

✓ People outside the family have trouble understanding your child.

✓ You think your child may not hear well – a hearing test is always part of it.

✓ Your child is teased or doesn't like to talk.

A good first step is your pediatrician or a licensed speech-language pathologist (SLP).

How does speech therapy work?

Listening hearing the difference – first in others, then in yourself → S alone finding the new S → Syllables & words beginning, middle, end, friends → Sentences & stories making it stick → Everyday life the longest and most important phase

This workbook follows exactly this order.

Good to know: This workbook focuses on listening and speaking games. It is practice material for home – it is not a diagnosis and does not replace an assessment or speech therapy.

About this workbook

- Order of the pages: listening → finding the sound → syllable → word → sentence → everyday talk

- Every child is different. If you have questions about your child's pronunciation, talk to a speech-language pathologist (SLP).

STEP 1 · LISTEN

Ear Training

Before you say the S, you train your ears.

Game 1: The Sound Police

An adult says words with S – sometimes right, sometimes wrong (e.g., "thun" instead of "sun"). You are the Sound Police: hold up the right card!

10 words per round. How many did you get right? Round 1: ___ Round 2: ___ Round 3: ___

✂ Cut out the two cards.
